

HOME MISSIONARY WORK

New England a Most Fertile Field, Says Chicago Minister.

President of Theological Seminary
Fears American Civilization and is Not Worried about the Character of Immigrants.

The 36th annual meeting of the Congregational Woman's Home Missionary union of Vermont began its sessions Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock in the First Church.

After the singing of the opening hymn, the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Rebecca P. Fairbanks of St. Johnsbury. Prayer was offered by Mrs. J. Elizabeth Swift of Woodstock.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by Mrs. W. J. Van Patten and Mrs. M. H. Buckham, and responded to by Mrs. Arthur P. Pratt of Bellows Falls.

Greetings from the American Missionary association and from the Educational society of the union were conveyed by Mrs. F. W. Wilcox and Mrs. N. W. Hanks. Greetings from the Federation in Kansas City at the time of the national council were conveyed by Mrs. H. E. Harned of Jeffersonville.

The following 15 minutes were given over to the successes and problems of the Vermont branch as a whole, as auxiliary societies and individuals. There were four speakers, Mrs. M. H. Buckham, Miss Helenway of Brattleboro, secretary for junior work, Mrs. Kirkland of Bellows Falls and Miss Deavitt of Montpelier.

Next Miss Marion Gary gave an outline of the work of the young people for the year.

Perhaps the most important event in the afternoon program was an address by Mrs. Hanks on "Spanish Americans of the Southwest." Mrs. Hanks spoke with special reference to the work in New Mexico, in which she is engaged. She said that New Mexico suffers from three plagues—the politician, the priest and the poor people.

After the three plagues were mentioned, she spoke of the poor people, who have little left. She spoke of the tremendously large estates of the proprietors and the demoralizing effect which ownership of large tracts of land by a few proprietors had upon the mass of the inhabitants. She gave a vivid picture of the educational conditions of that region. She told of finding one man who could neither read nor write drawing pay as public school teacher. She asked him how he had ever managed to pass the examinations necessary to secure the position. He answered that it was not so difficult since the first question had been: "How much will you pay?" She spoke of the lack of real religion among these people and of the way in which the priest would sometimes visit a locality as seldom as once in ten years, doing in a lump job all the marrying, baptizing, and saying the masses which might have been said during the intervening time. She spoke of the value of the industrial school which is liberally helped every year by the Vermont Union, and thanked the people for their liberality, further reminding them of the value of the children's procession.

The children of the First and College Street Churches marched in with banners and the flag, and saluted the flag and gave the Christian salute. The children were then addressed by Mrs. Wilcox, who gave many anecdotes drawn from her work among the negroes and the mountain whites in the South.

"Seed" Thinks in the Land of Cotton was the subject of this most instructive talk. Mrs. George C. Fabian, secretary for home young people's work, spoke on the junior societies.

From five to six o'clock followed an informal social hour at the parish house.

EVENING SESSION.

In the evening at 7:30 the second session of the convention began. The scripture lesson was read by the Rev. E. G. Guthrie, and prayer was offered by the Rev. J. C. Smart. A solo, "Fear Not Ye O Israel," was sung by Mrs. C. S. Van Patten. The address of the evening was delivered by the Rev. Ozora S. Davis, D. D., president of the Chicago Theological Seminary.

Dr. Davis had for his subject "A Vision of Service." In a very eloquent way he pictured out the opportunity offered American churches, and Congregational Churches in particular, by present-day American problems. The chief of the problems is that which comes to us with the immigrant.

The immigrant is a different man today from the immigrant of ten or twenty years ago. Different in tradition, in religion, in character. There are only twenty-seven per cent. from the northwestern portions of Europe, while seventy-three per cent. come from the southeastern sections.

Dr. Davis was anything but pessimistic about these newcomers. He gave specific instances to show the stamina and character in them. He spoke in this connection of the great work in educating foreigners, particularly Hungarians, which is being done by Northland College on Lake Superior. In northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, he said, the Hungarians have gone into the "slashes," the tracts of stripped forest land where one also would try to live. They are winning these tracts to cultivation. They are also heroes, the victims of the Hungarian uprisings, the victims of the stern tyranny of the czar.

Then he spoke of how near this foreigner comes to us and cited the case of Springfield, Vt., where he came to his first parish 17 years ago. At that time the town was all American. Last summer as he walked the streets of the same town, it seemed as if every other person was a Pole or Hungarian. He said that New England was in his judgment, the most fertile of the home mission fields.

He then took his audience on a four mile walk through certain streets in the heart of Chicago. Here came first Jerusalem, a regular ghetto, all the signs written in Yiddish. Next came Athens, where every sign was Greek and where the pictures in the windows showed the men in the kilted Greek costume. Next came the Italian section, where Italian was everywhere. Then came blocks of saloons and the lowest conditions. This was American. The civilization which made him fear the most, he confessed, was his own. It is our civilization which will set its mark upon the newcomers. There is an imperative upon us to give them the best.

Dr. Davis' talk was very concrete and clear, full of instances which actually happened.

"For the land's sake—use Bowker's Fertilizers. They enrich the earth and those who till it." (Adv.)

A YEAR AND A DAY.

Laduke's Sentence in Federal Prison for Stealing from Freight Car.

Chief of Police Patrick J. Russell, Officers Miles and Collins and Station Agent J. O. Adams of the Central Vermont Railway company, who were summoned to appear at the Windsor term of United States court Wednesday as witnesses in the trial of James Louis Laduke of this city, did have to make the trip as word was received by Deputy Marshal Reeves Monday that Laduke had pleaded guilty and had received his sentence, the term being a year and a day at the government penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. Laduke has been a police court character in Burlington for several years, usually in the name of an intoxication respondent. Some months ago, however, some of the freight cars of the Central Vermont Railway company here were broken into and a short time afterward a bag of tobacco, candy and other goods similar to the articles taken were found at Laduke's house. He was arrested on the charge of theft by the State authorities, at which time he claimed that he had found the articles. At the term of federal court here in February he was indicted on the charge of violating the interstate commerce laws by breaking into and stealing merchandise from a car in transportation from one State to another. It was to this charge he pleaded guilty at Windsor Monday.

TAKES HIS MEDICINE.

John Nephew Pleads Guilty to Embezzlement and Goes to Windsor.

John Nephew, who recently returned to Burlington after an absence of several weeks and was arrested on a charge of embezzling the sum of $10 from Leonard Bartley, for whom he drove a coal team, concluded Thursday that he would "take his medicine" in city court and not wait for the full term of county court. He requested the State's attorney to file an information against him, charging him with the crime, and to this he pleaded guilty. He was sentenced by the court to not less than two nor more than three years at the State prison at Windsor.

John Greco, a Burlington man recently arrested at Waterbury, was also arraigned Thursday on the charge of criminal infidelity, to which he pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to serve not less than 18 months nor more than two years at the house of correction at Rutland. He is a married man. The co-respondent is Leona Lashua and the charge specifies the crime as having been committed in Williston in September of 1913.

G. W. BAILEY A TRUSTEE.

Secretary of State to Succeed G. S. Fassett on University Board.

Word was received Tuesday at the office of President Benton of the University of Vermont of the appointment of Secretary of State Guy W. Bailey to the board of trustees of the university to fill out the unexpired term of Gardner S. Fassett.

Mr. Fassett, who lives in Enosburg, has been a member of the board of trustees since 1899 and therefore has served nearly a quarter of a century. His resignation will take effect June 1 and he gives as his reasons advanced years and ill health. Mr. Bailey received the degree of A. B. from the university in 1900 and at the present time is chairman of the State Alumni association. Mr. Bailey's appointment came from the Governor in behalf of the State and he will serve beginning June 1 until the next meeting of the Legislature.

The board of trustees is made up of 30 members, nine appointed by the alumni, nine appointed by the State and the Governor of the State and president of the university are members ex-officio. The appointment of Mr. Bailey is the third appointment to be made by the Governor among those trustees appointed by the State.

Mr. Fassett had sole supervision of the erection of Morrill hall. Up to two years ago he was a member of the board of control of the experiment station. Most of his service was directed toward the agricultural college. The board very reluctantly accepted his resignation and the secretary has sent him a letter of appreciation.

WATER DEPARTMENT RUMPUSS

Committee Considers Mayor's Charges against Superintendent.

New Phase of Hearing That Was Begun to Inquire into Oscar Heininger's Removal from the Department.

The committee of the board of aldermen which is investigating the water department and particularly the case of the discharge of Oscar Heininger and the charges brought by Mayor Kidder against Superintendent J. Frank Burke held another long meeting Tuesday night at the city clerk's office hearing several of the charges. The mayor gave information that the end was not yet and that he may have more to say. Tuesday evening he presented eight more charges, in addition to the fourteen which he has already submitted.

The charges were taken up in the order in which they were presented.

The first, which was that the water department had purchased two carloads of cement of Spaulding, Kimball & Co. for which they had paid at the rate of $132 per barrel when it could have been purchased at $120, was taken up by the mayor, who submitted the report of a former investigating committee on the same subject. He gave as his evidence the report of that committee which was to the effect that in December of 1911 and January of 1912 the department had purchased in small lots about $200 worth of cement. The report recommended that there had undoubtedly been a violation of the city ordinance because of the fact that one of the members of the water commission, Mr. Kutter, was also a member of the firm from which the cement had been purchased and that the stuff had not been bought by competitive bid, the price being above the limit provided by city charter which fixes $25 as the limit to which city officials may sell to the city except by competitive bid. The report also recommended that a purchasing agent would be a good thing for the city and further stated that there was no evidence of an intentional violation of the charter. This constituted the mayor's evidence on charges one and two, the latter being that Mr. Kutter being a member of the commission, the purchase of the cement was a misappropriation of funds.

The next seven charges were not taken up because the evidence of the mayor, which is largely documentary, was not at hand, the people who are working on the books of the department for the figures necessary not having completed their labors.

Charge number ten, which sets forth that Miss Kitty McCaffrey, a long-time employee of the department, had been discharged without notice and cause, was gone into at length. Miss McCaffrey appeared in her own behalf as a witness against Mr. Kidder. She said that Mr. Kidder was very agreeable to her until Dr. J. W. Courtney became a water commissioner, which was in 1911. The first friction began when Miss McCaffrey asked for a raise in salary. She said that she did not get it and she told Mr. Kidder he evidently did not want her to have it and he replied that he had seen to it with the water commissioners that she did not get it. Miss McCaffrey said that she had objected to Dr. Courtney's knowing the combination of the big safe, whereupon Mr. Kidder forbade her to look the safe and that it was always unlocked thereafter and the books were accessible to Dr. Courtney and Tom Dietz and Harry, or whoever wanted to see them. She said that Mr. Kidder had told her to take charge of the office, that he didn't want to be around when people came there as she knew more about the business than he did.

She said she knew that there was trouble in the air and one day she asked Mr. Kidder what it was and what the charges were against her. Mr. Kidder told her that she was quarreling with the boys downstairs. Miss McCaffrey then called them by phone to step upstairs and they responded, whereupon Mr. Kidder asked her if he wanted him to throw her out of the office and told the boys to go downstairs to their work. She insisted on knowing what the trouble was and Mr. Kidder told her that was one of the things she could keep thinking about. He told her not to speak about the affair that had just happened. In February of 1912 Mr. Kidder came in with Oscar Heininger one day and told her that her sister, Miss Agnes McCaffrey, who was also employed there, was going to get through. He gave no reason why. Miss McCaffrey then telephoned to Mayor Roberts, who advised her to remain until he came down. Thereupon Mr. Kidder remarked to Agnes: "How long are you going to stay?" and lifted his hand as if to strike her. She replied, "Kidder, you hit me if you dare," and he took down his hand. Then Mr. Kidder called Officer John Ryan from the police office to come up and remain until she had gone.

Miss Agnes McCaffrey corroborated what her sister had said.

The mayor on being asked to give his evidence on charge 11, which questions whether Mr. Kidder is a gentleman and to occupy the office he does, related some circumstances to prove his assertion of ungentlemanly conduct. He first told how Mr. Kidder had abused the whole Masonic fraternity at one time when he was an alderman and the representative of the alderman had appeared before the board of civil authority on the question of how much the Masonic Temple should be assessed for on the tax list. He also related how Mr. Kidder had once, at a board meeting, threatened Alderman McCaffrey with carrying him home over to fall in a bushel basket, and also how he told the committee at a recent meeting of the present committee he would crawl down the mayor's throat after the mayor had merely expressed himself on the subject of whether or not the committee should go into executive session. In this connection Alderman Buell of the committee asked the mayor if he had just happened to be spoken as he did because the mayor had interrupted him when he (Mr. Kidder) was speaking. The mayor said he was willing to abide by the decision of the committee as to what took place.

On the same charge of ungentlemanly conduct Mrs. Mary Cassidy, widow of William Cassidy, foreman in the department for many years, testified that she once called on Mr. Kidder to have some bills rectified and that when she went into the office, Mr. Kidder asked her if she wanted five cents to pay her carfare home.

All the other charges were taken up one at a time and testimony given towards corroborating them. The mayor stated that Mr. Kidder had once taken a book from the office that had been prepared by the auditors and never returned it. He then called on Mrs. Cassidy to prove that Mr. Kidder had taken other things from the department for his own use. Miss Cassidy testified that she looked after certain books kept by her husband and that he had kept a private diary from which she testified. In the course of her testimony she said that her husband had bitterly complained of how Mr. Kidder had made him do work for private parties and that he had gone to Fort Ethan Allen and Winoski and to certain firms about town naming John Allen, the Hickok company, Crane Brothers and others. She testified that she learned that Mr. Kidder had had some black iron pipe cut up at a job at the reservoir and that one of the department men had drawn it to his residence. She said she called up Mr. Kidder and said she wanted some of it and that some had been drawn to her house. She said she supposed that it was being given away. She also testified to Mr. Kidder's causing the manure to be drawn away from the barn at the Cassidy residence whereas under former superintendents she had sold it. She also testified to finding out that a large load of lumber from the pumping station was being drawn to the building houses with.

On the charge of the appropriation of articles of the department for his own use, the mayor testified that he had been informed that Mr. Kidder had sold a six-inch meter which if new would have cost $50 and that he had never made any return on the city's books. Several testimonies were read as to Miss McCaffrey's good character and efficiency.

In support of the charge that the removal of Mr. Heininger was unjust and unwarranted, the mayor recited the evidence that has already appeared before the committee. Alderman Buell reminded him that it was already in the case and that the mayor was now talking to the gallery. Mr. Burke then stated that he would leave the evidence before the committee on that subject just as it was.

To recount all that was submitted would require several columns. When the evidence for the evening was completed Mr. Kidder made a statement to the effect that every cent taken in by him while superintending on the water rates or anything else could be accounted for in the city treasurer's books. He said there was good reason for the private work done by the department in the way of establishing fire services and because the department owned the only tapping machine for two and a half inch pipes. He concluded by stating that he was in the hands of God, man or the devil to prove that he had ever insulted Miss McCaffrey.

MAYOR'S NEW CHARGES.

To the Alderman Committee Investigating Matters Pertaining to the Water Department:

(1) That the department's team with two men for days on different occasions have drawn manure to Commissioner Rutter's and Superintendent Kidder's grounds.

(2) That a telephone was installed in the lower office when the regular office upstairs was furnished with one, and both also connected with speaking tube. The telephone was apparently put in for the benefit of Commissioner Courtney as Mr. Kidder said that it would be handy for Courtney to use while hanging around the lower office.

(3) That quantities of brass and other junk were disposed of with no returns being made to the department.

(4) That Superintendent Kidder, and Commissioner Courtney worked in an unfair and underhanded manner in trying to get rid of Miss Kitty McCaffrey and her sister, two of the most competent and faithful employees that ever filled the positions. As to their efficiency, Howe, Rose & Co., expert auditors, made the following statement in one of their reports: "During our examination we were unable to find a single clerical error in the keeping of the accounts, and we take this opportunity of commending the department on its efficient office force." Yet, these two ladies were shamefully abused and treated by Mr. Kidder with no charge ever being made against them.

(5) That the department has been continually doing work for private persons on their own premises, even going outside the city in some instances. This should not be continued.

(6) That disclosures already made when presented to your committee by the persons now examining the books lead me to believe that the removal of all abuses in the way of special favors given, and the total elimination of all graft, a reduction of one dollar on the schedule rates to every taker of the water could easily be made.

(7) That in order to favor one of the commissioner's brothers, Mr. Kidder told Mike Collins to have him ride with him to make the people believe he was busy in order to keep him on the payroll.

(8) That Mr. Kidder has on many occasions taken men from the department for his own private interests.

(9) That coal has been furnished from the department for a former commissioner.

(10) That the employment of Alderman Coffey by the water commissioners and Superintendent Kidder when he was at the pumping station was done as a rank violation of the city charter, all being city officials and should not be tolerated.

THE WAY IT WAS.

It was a cold day in December, and the superintendent of a charitable institution was examining a number of poor children as to their claims for more comfortable clothing.

She was pined up quite securely in a thin shawl.

"Have you any clothes at home?" she was asked.

"No'm."

"What have you got on?"

"Please, this is my aunt's shawl, and my dress is next, and then comes L."

JOHN POTTER WANTED.

Is Suspected of Having Stolen a Horse, Wagon and Revolver.

A young man named John Potter, age 28, until Saturday a resident of Burlington, is very much desired by the police for, according to all accounts that seem to be reliable, Mr. Potter committed a burglary and stole a horse and wagon Saturday afternoon. At present his whereabouts are unknown, but he has been traced as far as Essex Junction and the horse and wagon have been recovered.

Potter came to this city not very long ago and worked for George M. Farrington on North avenue for a short time, then he hired out to Edward C. Parker, who is occupying the old Hathaway place on North avenue, and remained there Saturday afternoon to take the work wagon and come into the city to get the carriage at the Star restaurant and he started out on his mission but later he evidently returned for it was discovered that the work wagon had been exchanged for a Concord buggy and Potter was suspected as having made the change because neither he nor the horse showed up again.

Later in the day there came a report to the police office that the house on the Farrington place on North avenue, which is only a short distance from the farm occupied by Mr. Parker, had been broken into. Chief Russell at once made an investigation and ascertained that the house had been entered by some one forcing the rear door which act also caused the casing to fall in. A search inside the place disclosed the fact that the bedroom of Mr. Farrington had been thoroughly ransacked but no article of value except a Colt's revolver. The burglary was committed some time in the afternoon when Mr. Farrington, who is the sole occupant of the house, was away.

Chief Russell immediately notified the surrounding towns and began a search. Sunday afternoon, Officer William Collins, who was looking up the case in Essex Junction, discovered that a rig answering the description of the stolen one had been left at half-past four o'clock Saturday afternoon at William's stable by a man who in every way resembled Potter. The man told the people at the stable that he wanted to leave the horse and buggy there for about an hour. He then took a large revolver from under the seat cushion and departed. He did not show up again. This undoubtedly established the identity of Potter, as the revolver was probably the one stolen from Farrington's place.

The office at Burlington was notified Sunday afternoon of the discovery and preparations were made to have the rig driven back to Burlington, but a further examination of the outfit disclosed the fact that although it was Parker's buggy it was not Parker's horse, the animal at the William's stable being a much smaller one than the horse stolen. Potter evidently had swapped the horse, got something to "boot" and decided to leave the last acquired horse and wagon at the stable.

The Parker horse was recovered late Sunday evening at the home of Frank Campobasso, in Essex Junction. It developed that Campobasso met a man answering Potter's description on the Colchester road near Fort Ethan Allen and that the two got into a conversation which finally resulted in the two swapping horses. This happened between three and four o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Campobasso horse is the one recovered at the Willy stable in Essex Junction.

Potter is described as a man 29 years of age and about five feet four inches tall, of light complexion, with brown hair and wearing gray clothing. He told his employer that his home was in Montpelier.

WEDDED AT ST. JOSEPH'S.

W. L. Ploof and Miss Hattie Garrow Married Tuesday Morning.

William Lee Ploof, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Ploof of North avenue, and Miss Hattie Garrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Garrow of Summer street, were married at St. Joseph's Church at eight o'clock Tuesday morning by Monsignor Jerome M. Cloutier. They were attended by their fathers.

The bride wore white crepe de chine trimmed with shadow lace with hat to match, and carried white roses. Following the wedding ceremony, which was attended by many friends, a reception was held at the home of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Ploof left on the 11:55 train for a 10 days' wedding trip to Pittsfield, Mass. They will reside with the groom's parents on North avenue in this city.

WEDDING AT CATHEDRAL.

H. P. Gleason and Miss Catherine Sullivan Married Tuesday.

Miss Catherine Helen Sullivan was united in marriage to Henry Francis Gleason Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Cathedral by the Rev. T. J. Leonard of Middlebury, the bride's uncle. The ceremony was very quiet on account of the recent death of the bride's father. The bride was attired in a gown of white shadow lace over white satin with white hat to match and carried white carnations. The bridesmaid was Miss Catherine C. Cannon, who was attired in blue crepe de chine with white hat and carried pink carnations. The groom was attended by his brother, Frank Gleason. Both the bride and groom are popular young people of this city. The young couple received many handsome gifts. After a short wedding trip they will reside at 35 Monroe street.

IMPOSSIBLE CLAIMS.

The late George A. Hearn, the millionaire business man and art collector of New York, was noted for his kind and reasonable treatment of his employees. Mr. Hearn used to smile at the new scientific management craze, of which he once said at a dinner:

"These scientific management people, with their impossible claims of doubling and tripling a man's labor, remind me of the humble hod carrier's impossible promise."

"A facetious boss said to a new hod carrier:

"Look-a-here, friend, didn't I hire you to carry bricks up that ladder by the way?"

"Yes, sir," said the hod carrier, touching his cap."

"Well, I've had my eye on you, and you've only done it half a day today. You spent the other half coming down the ladder."

"The hod carrier touched his cap again."

"I'll try to do better to-morrow, sir," he said humbly."—Washington Star.
